AMERICA AND CONTROL OF AMERICA AND CONTROL completed, will be an attraction, of which even Faris might be presed. This avenue, from Washington avenue to East New York, is about one hundred and forty feet wide, and has, for a distance of several miles, two rows of young shade trees on cach side. This is well so far as it goes, but below Washington avenue the street is formed by making the width uniform as far down as Fourth avenue. If this plan were carried out, there would, be three grand avenues radiating from that junction, each one being a wide and splendid drive, with double rows of trees on each side, after the style of the Paris boulevards. Fourth avenue leads to the Water Works and cemerate of East New York. These would form there main arteries roungt thought for the main action with this improvement there ought to be one grand throughfare what will eventually be the heart of the city. Name the saucepan, camp ket the three or four spoons, of home manufacture, two or three, wooden dishes, likewise of home manufacture, and you have as I thorough an inventory as any knight of the hammer could make. It is not by indadverteace that the coffee roasting, grinding and boiling apparatus are absent from the list, for the luxury of a cup of coffee is not amongst the home comforts of the "poor I adian," unless he has lately been in a government fort. Half a dozen buffalo robes are the only articles approaching bed furniture which he possesses, the whole forming an accumulation of filth and vermin. Towels and soap are of course unknown luxuries, and his personal costume entirely accords with his other domestic equipments, his scanty and only covering being a "breechclout," generally ragged and never washed. Of course in winter the Indian covers his nakedness with a red blanket or a buffalo robe, or an army overcoat. robe, or an army overcoat.
